Cassandra Lécuyer is an associate in FTPA's Competition Law department. She joined the firm in 2025 after gaining experience at a leading international law firm.

She advises and represents clients before the French Competition Authority in matters involving cartels and abuse of dominance, as well as before specialized courts in follow-on damages actions arising from competition law breaches.

Her practice also covers all aspects of merger control, including filings with the relevant authorities, and reviews of foreign investments and foreign subsidies.

Cassandra has been a member of the Paris Bar since 2023. She holds a Master's degree in European Business and Competition Law from Université Paris II Panthéon-Assas and also studied at University College London.
